- Post office.
- Shop.
- Shop.
- A community market in the village hall from time to time. Perhaps the Swan could double up as a village shop and post office, which would be of great benefit to the community, especially older people who have no access to transport. If the parish hall is to be retained, would also like to see it reverted to its original role as a reading room with internet access and refreshments available, perhaps open for a few hours each morning so that people who have no access to internet could use it as an information centre.

Q27 - Any further comments or suggestions about improving access to shopping?

- shop in Enford with delivery service
- At present no, however if I cannot drive then public transport to some decent shops may become essential.
- Vegetable and fruit sharing.
- just moved in so don't really know yet
- Have a community-run minibus to do shopping runds, etc, with a volunteer driving rota.
- Not enough support for a shop - population of village is too small.
- Public transport is both expensive and infrequent. On the other hand there is a regular flow of single occupancy cars travelling to shops all over the area. It would be good if we could instigate a local car sharing scheme to allow people to hitch a lift to the shops - even if only in one direction.
- extensdion of shop to pub for milk bread etc
- Evening buses from Marlborough to Enford. The last bus is 18.15 this is ridiculous
- I have newspapers delivered to Red Lion.
- Most arreas of village close to Netheravon or Upavon so shop or post office not likely to be viable.
- A village shop
- More frequent public transport.
- The country is in recession and will be for some time. We need to use what is already on offer in nearby towns or risk their closure.
- It would be great to have somewhere locally where parcels could be delivered to.
- Pub could sell basic essentials like bread, paper, eggs.
- Have a local shop in Enford that is easily reached by residents.
- Improve Sunday bus times from Salisbury.
- We used to have items delivered but delivery costs were exorbitant.
